International Leadership Week offers new perspectives

40 speakers, 40 countries, 4 days. FREE. Can you afford not to get a fresh perspective on leadership?

We're collaborating with The Institute of Leadership & Management, this year's International Leadership Week because we believe that the new challenges leaders face today require new ways of thinking to enable you and your organisations to thrive.

In just the last 10 months, the mass movement of people worldwide to remote working has necessitated leadership everywhere. Leadership executed solely in the boardroom is no longer an option - we are all leaders now.

Inspired by this tectonic shift in organisational culture, and the thoughts of the late Peter Drucker, this year The Institute is asking high-profile, cutting-edge thought-leaders from around the world to challenge traditional leadership thinking, to explore its relevance today and offer new approaches.

Join this unique conversation of 30-minute webinars packed with interviews, panel discussions, debates and talks, to become a better leader.

16-19 November. Book your FREE place now!
